Gentlemen:

We are planning to publish shortly a high school text in economics and are anxious to include therein a page of ancient and modern coins illustrating the various types of coins and their sizes. If you have photographs which you would like to submit to us, we shall be glad to make a selection and acknowledge your courtesy either under the photograph itself or in the list of acknowledgments at the beginning of the book.

We shall be glad to return the photographs after we have made our selection and drawn a halftone, if you wish us to do so.

I shall look forward to hearing whether we may have the pleasure of including this photograph in our forthcoming text.

Yours truly

Gentlemen:

We do not carry any stock of photographs, but only make these on order, so that the person ordering has the right to those photographs. Also, we find that no two people wish the same things. If you care to send someone up to select coins, you can have negatives made or if you do not want to go to this expense, your representative might pick out odds and ends of photographs that we have here, gotten together in various ways.

Very truly yours,

HW:JG
